Introduction

2011

The PhD program provides graduate education and research training in the field of public affairs, public administration, and public policy. The students are required to take courses instructed by world-class professors, and to work on research projects to find far-reaching solutions to the important issues in a variety of areas. The goal of the Ph.D. degree is to cultivate world-class innovative leaders who can work in international universities and research institutes. A Ph.D. degree is given in recognition of a student's outstanding knowledge and innovative capability in a specific field. It seeks cooperation with research projects in government to achieve international impact. It also encourages international cooperation and exchange, through short-term study abroad programs or participation in international conferences.

Program Objective

The program aims to Provide students with an opportunity to develop functional expertise, strategic perspectives, and public policy management tools that they require to operate effectively in a changing public policy environment or to understand such an environment.

Help students to learn both the successes and failures in public policy making and administration, and therefore to understand more about how to manage political, economic and social development in developing countries.

Introduce students the techniques of policy analysis and program evaluation to resolve complex multi-dimensional policy challenges, as well as to sharpen their leadership and communication skills.
